How to Live.

He liveth long who liveth well ! All other life is short and value He liveth longest who can tell Of fiving most for heavenly gain.

He liveth long who liveth well !

All else is being flung away ! He liveth longest who can tell Of true things truly done each day.

Waste not thy being; back to him Who freely gave it, freely give; Else is that being but a dream; 'Tis but to be, and not to live.

Be what thou seemest! live thy creed! Hold up to earth the torch divine; Be what thou prayest to be made: Let the great Master's steps be thine.

Fill up each hour with what will last; Buy up the moments as they go; The life above, when this is past, Is the ripe fruit of life below. Sow truth, if thou the true wouldst reap;

Who sows the false shall reap the vain; Erect and sound thy conscience keep; From hollow words and deeds refrain. Sow love, and taste its tragrance pure; Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;

Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor. And find a harvest home of light. -Selected.

VARIETY.

In what ship have the greatest number of people been wrecked? Court-ship. Why is a bridegroom worth more than a bride?

Because she is given away and he is sold. It is a remarkable peculiarity with debts, that their expanding power continues to increase as you

Dr. Johnson says: " After all, it is better for a lady to redden her own cheeks than to blacken other people's characters." " How often do you knead bread :" asked one houskeeper of another. How often? Why, I might say we need it continually," the other replied. Learn in childhood, if yer can, that happiness is not outside, but inside. Lood heart and a clear conscience, bring happiness, which no riches and no circumstances alone ever do. The longer I live, the more I am certain that the great difference between men-between the feeble and powerful, the great and the insignificant, is energy-invincible determination; a purpose once fixed, and then "Death or Victory!" That quality will do anything that can be done in this world, and no talents, no circumstances, no opportunities will make a two legged creature a man without it .- Sir Fowell Buxton. PROVERES AND MOTTOES OF SHAKSPEARE. - On a former occasion a correspondent drew attention to the numerous proverbs, overflowing with pative wisdom, which are to be found in the pages of that master-piece of the great Cervantes, Don Quixote. Like the immortal Spaniard, our own (we call him "our own," for he is the greatest master of the tongue we speak) Shakspeare is especially rich in this sententious wisdom, embracing in succinct and compact utterances the noblest precepts, the soundest maxims of practical morality, and the most brilliant but wholesome satire. Like Cervantes again, who made a simpleton and a lunatic the spokesman of his wisest "saws," Shakspeare often puts his most brilliant proverbs in the mouths of knaves and fools; but by whomsoever spoken they are all marked by admirable common sense, and not seldom by a deeper wisdom, which becomes apparent on a studious examination of them and a careful reflection upon their hidden as well as obvious meaning.

From this wealth of apopthegm and paradox and poetry and quaint sayings, we present to the notice of the reader the following selections, in the trust that they will afford both amusement and instruction: There is no virtue like necessity.

Courage mounteth with occasion. He tires betimes, that spurs too fast betimes. Small showers last long, but sudden storms are With eager feeding, food doth choke the feeder.

Though death be poor it ends a mortal woe. The ripest fruit fails first. Out of this nettle danger, we pluck the flower

No word like "pardon," for kings' mouths so Tell truth and shame the devil.

Oxen at a stall are better cherished, still the nearer death. Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown. He that dies this year is quiet for the next.

The first bringer of unwelcome news bath but a losing office. Oft the sight of means to do ill deeds makes ill deeds done.

Most subject is the fattest soil to weeds. Wise hearing or ignorant carriage is caught, as men take diseases, one of another : therefore let men take heed of their company. How ill white hairs become a fool and jester.

There is some soul of goodness in things evil, would men observingly distil it out. A crafty knave does need no broker. Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just. It is a great sin to swear unto a sin, but greater sin to keep a sinful oath. The thief doth fear each bush an officer. Small herbs have grace, great woods do grow apace. What must be shall be.

He that is robbed, not wanting what is stolen, let him not know't, and he's not robbed at all. They laugh that win. Love reasons without reason.

You cannot make gross sins look clear. To revenge is no valor, but to bear. He's truly valiant that can wisely suffer. The learned pate ducks to the golden fool. When beggars die there are no comets seen. Cowards die many times before their deaths ; the valiant never taste of death but once. As fire drives out fire, so pity, pity.

The evil that men do, lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones. Some that smile have in their hearts millions of Fear makes devils of cherubims. To fear the worst oft cures the worst. Perseverance keeps honor bright. One touch of nature makes the whole world kin. Those wounds heal ill that men do give themselves. The end crowns all. Thanks to men of noble minds is honorable meed. The raven doth not hatch a lark. Few love to hear the sins they love to act. 'Tis time to fear when tyrants seem to kiss. They do not love that do not show their love. Truth hath better deeds than words to grace it. Time is the nurse and breeder of all good.
